

The Danube

On its 2800 km journey from the Black Forest to the Black Sea, the Danube joins Europe with Asia, the Occident with the Orient. The second longest river on the continent is definitely the most European of all rivers. No other river touches so many European countries, or offers more insight into national traditions and nowhere will you hear a larger number of different languages than along the Danube.

Anyone who accompanies us on our Danube cruise, will get to know different cultures, religions and regional architecture. The Danube presents a vivid picture of the continent's turbulent (and moving) history – especially now that the countries in Southeastern Europe have been reincluded in our river cruise program.

"The three weeks I cruised with your company have been the most wonderful I've experienced for a long time... The attentiveness, punctuality and the friendly personal service were remarkable..."

THE HERITAGE OF THE HABSBURG'S
Passau - Budapest - Passau

The section of river between Passau and Budapest is among the most classic of river cruise routes in Europe. History-laden castles, churches and abbeys here, baroque villages there, and in between quaint valleys flanked by vineyards and vast stretches of almost untouched meadows and last but not least, the capital cities of Vienna, Bratislava and Budapest with their immense variety of art and cultural treasures. A variety, which is of course also reflected in the cuisine, the music and the languages.

BLUE DANUBE - BLACK SEA
Passau - Black Sea - Passau

No other river in Europe is as multicultural as the Danube: on its journey to the Black Sea, it flows through no less than 9 countries from West to East – after the confusion of the last few years, it is finally navigable right up to its mouth. The “Iron Gate”, the Carpathian Mountains and the Balkans, Walachia, Dobruja, the Danube Delta and the Black Sea – widely unknown destinations worth discovering, making a cruise on the Danube a very special experience.
